

Your software license is about to expire

This is an alert message to inform customers that the provisional software license is about to expire; there are 15 days left before the license really expires.

For your information all our benches are delivered with a provisional software license, which becomes definitive once sales operations are completed with full payment. In many cases this wouldn't be needed but, having customers all over the world, with several different formalities - from customs procedures to local laws, from warranty to assistance clauses, penalties, leasing etc. - this became a standard procedure for us.

To prevent the license to expire open a support request at www.microplan.it/support